Six new classes of amateur operator licenses in place of the present three. 50 kilocycles of additional spectrum space between 3800 and 3850 kilocycles have been added for radiotelephone operations. The new rules create a novice class – based on ability to send five code words per minute and elementary radio knowledge... technician class – covering novice qualifications plus operational experience... Conditional class (formerly Class C) – based on ability to send 13 words per minute and wider general knowledge... General class (formerly Class B) ... Advanced Class (formerly class A). There are about 90,000 licensed amateur operators in the country operating 89,000 amateur stations.
